HOUSTON—(May 3, 2010)— Flying Eagles International FC, a soccer club founded by a former Olympian, is joining the Houston Express Soccer Club, already one of the largest youth soccer clubs in the Houston area.

Flying Eagle’s president, international footballer Adebisi “Ade” Adeniran, , will join the coaching staff of Houston Express Soccer Club. Adeniran represented his native Nigeria in the 1988 Seoul Olympic Games.

“We are delighted to welcome the more than 70 Flying Eagles International players to our Houston Express club,” said Houston Express President Bob Corrigan. “We also are fortunate to attract someone of Ade’s caliber to our coaching staff.”

Houston Express Soccer Club, based at the South Campus sports facility located at Stella Link and West Bellfort in Southwest Houston, registers over 2,000 players a year and offers playing opportunities at the recreational and competitive level for players ages 4 to 18. Registration is currently ongoing for the Fall 2010 season and is open until May 31 and there are no geographic restrictions to playing with the Houston Express. Player evaluations will be held in May and June. For more information on evaluations, the schedule and to register online, please visit <http://www.houstonexpresssoccer.org/>.
